The Office of Special Investigations (OSI), U.S. Air Force, advised that U.S. Air Force regulations require that uniformed personnel and civilian U.S. Air Force employees coordinate any contact with Congressional representatives with the Legislative Liaison Office and that classified matters cannot be discussed with Congressional representatives without prior approval of the Legislative Liaison Office. OSI advised that at the present time it cannot be determined whether an employee of a U.S. Air Force contractor, such as Rand Corporation, would be bound by the same regulation; but if classified material was furnished to a Congressional representative, it could not have been with U.S. Air Force approval.

CAV. On March 30, 1970, [REDACTED] attorney for [REDACTED] was contacted, at which time it was pointed out to [REDACTED] that the FBI would desire to question [REDACTED] relative to a situation in which it was felt she would be able to furnish information. On April 3, 1970, [REDACTED] advised that he and [REDACTED] would appear at the Los Angeles Office of the FBI for interview on April 9, 1970.

b7C

On April 8, 1970, [REDACTED] telephonically contacted the Los Angeles Office of the FBI, at which time he stated that [REDACTED] had decided she did not desire to be interviewed by the FBI, for personal reasons and that if she ever decided to the contrary, [REDACTED] would contact the FBI.

[REDACTED] advised that a review of the sign-in records from October 1969 through January 1970 failed to reflect any record of [REDACTED] being at Rand Corporation with his son. He pointed out that technically any individual over the age of 12 years is required to sign the register.

[redacted] further stated that a preliminary check with guards had failed to shed any light on [redacted] being at Rand Corporation with his son. He did point out, however, that during Christmas holidays it was a normal custom for employees to bring their children in for visits and in such instances the practice of signing the register was not always adhered to.

APPROX.

On June 23, 1970,

[redacted] was interviewed at [redacted] by Special Agents of the FBI.

[redacted] was also present at this interview. [redacted] was apprised of the basic allegations, in that [redacted] was reported sometime during the recent Christmas holidays to have visited Rand Corporation, accompanied by his son [redacted]. The son later related to his mother that he and his father went to Rand Corporation, where they picked up some papers from an office on Rand property. [redacted] took the papers to another office which was located away from Rand Corporation and made copies of them. His son [redacted] reportedly told his mother that he saw "Top Secret" written on these papers.

[redacted] allegedly questioned [redacted] concerning this matter, at which time he advised her that it did not make any difference since the papers were to stay in the Government and that they were made for Senators Fulbright and Goodell.

[redacted] stated that at no time did [redacted] ever discuss furnishing any material of any kind to Senators Fulbright or Goodell. [redacted] stated that if he had been aware that [redacted] had done such a thing, he would have taken positive action. He continued that naturally [redacted] had no authority to reproduce any classified documents for anyone. He volunteered that if the above-mentioned Senators or any other Congressmen had formally requested a document, the documents would undoubtedly been made available to them, but in accordance with the proper procedure, i.e., clearing the material and their request for same through the proper channels.

[REDACTED] mentioned that it goes without saying that he had no definite knowledge as to what documents [REDACTED] might have reproduced but he offered that if he were to hazard a guess, it would pertain to documents from the "McNamara Study."

b7C

He stated that the "McNamara Study" was a request by former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara to compile an outline of Viet Nam and the United States, commencing approximately 1940 up to the present time. Rand Corporation, among others, contributed in compiling this outline. [REDACTED] stated that the "McNamara Study" which is available at Rand Corporation would be comprised of many volumes and would fill at least two file cabinets. It was determined that certain papers in this particular "McNamara Study" would be classified by the Department of Defense as Secret, Top Secret and in some instances Confidential, depending on the particular paper.

b7C

[REDACTED] elaborated on the above supposition by stating that sometime ago [REDACTED] became quite emotional concerning the United States' involvement in Viet Nam. [REDACTED] along with some other individuals at Rand Corporation, wrote a letter, which ultimately appeared in national publications, protesting U.S. involvement in Viet Nam. According to [REDACTED] this particular writing caused what he termed "raised eyebrows" not only at Rand but in Washington.

b7C

[REDACTED] stated that in rebuttal to this particular paper, some other individuals at Rand Corporation wrote an article defending the U.S. position in the war in Viet Nam.

[REDACTED] stated that sometime in April 1970 [REDACTED] came to [REDACTED] and advised him he felt that he would not feel free to express himself as he desired if [REDACTED]. He stated he felt he would

At the time that [REDACTED] he told [REDACTED] he had secured a position at [REDACTED] and he would be starting in his new position in September. [REDACTED] also told [REDACTED] that he would be remarrying in the near future and [REDACTED] stated he was not remarrying his former wife.

[REDACTED] also stated that [REDACTED] Senator Fulbright's Foreign Relations Committee in Washington. He also pointed out that [REDACTED] was well known in Washington circles and at one time worked in the Pentagon. He stated [REDACTED] in his opinion, had a very sharp and keen mind but that he was very emotional, particularly in discussions relating to the Viet Nam war.

On June 30, 1970, [REDACTED] made available to the Los Angeles Office of the FBI an index of volumes contained in the "McNamara Study." A copy of this index is attached hereto (see Appendix). [REDACTED] again related that [REDACTED] was of the opinion that whatever documents or papers [REDACTED] might have taken from the Rand Corporation for reproduction might have come from among these volumes, the exact paper or papers naturally being unknown to [REDACTED] or to [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] also stated he ascertained that [REDACTED] Senator Fulbright's Foreign Relations Committee and [REDACTED] He stated he did not know the [REDACTED] nor did he know if it was [REDACTED]

[redacted]
[redacted] also stated that he determined the article which [redacted] and other individuals at Rand Corporation had written and which had appeared in a national publication was printed in its entirety in the October 12, 1969, edition of the "Washington Post." He stated that it was his understanding that an editorial relative to this article appeared in the October 10, 1969, issue of the "New York Times" but the article itself was not set forth.

[redacted] reaffirmed the statement of [redacted] in that [redacted] never advised him of his intention to furnish any information to Senator Fulbright or Senator Goodell. He further stated had he indicated a desire to do so, he would not have been granted this permission but that it would have been done in accordance with existing regulations.

This will confirm telephone calls on June 14 and 15, 1971, from Assistant Attorney General Robert C. Mardian to Mr. William C. Sullivan of this Bureau, wherein Mr. Mardian conveyed your requests that we interview four individuals who might have knowledge concerning captioned matter and that we conduct all necessary investigation in this matter.

On June 15, 1971, we interviewed three of the four individuals. The fourth, General Robert C. Hixon, was en route all day by car from his residence in McLean, Virginia, to a camping area in the vicinity of Myrtle Beach, South Carolina. As soon as he can be located in that area, he will be interviewed and you will be apprised of the results.

[redacted] of the "Indianapolis Star" newspaper, Indianapolis, Indiana, reportedly had received from the "New York Times" some of the classified material involved in this matter. On June 15, 1971, he stated he had no such material. The only information received by his paper consists of teletype releases issued to regular subscribers by the New York Times News Service. [redacted] was candid, cooperative and volunteered to contact this Bureau should he receive any material of value in the future.

On June 15, 1971, he furnished detailed information identifying individuals who had been connected with this task force or who were otherwise concerned with the preparation of the material. He acknowledged that lax security surrounding staff members would have made it possible for the material to have been reproduced before its final completion and official distribution; however, he did not think this was the case. He identified one  as the most likely person through whom the "New York Times" may have come into possession of the material involved in this matter. He explained that he did this on the grounds that  who was a member of the task force, had later become very radical regarding the Vietnam situation and had advocated the importance of making the "McNamara Study" public.  also, according to Mr. Gelb, had presented a paper at a political science convention, wherein he used classified information in paraphrased form taken from task force documents. Brigadier General Robert Hixon, whom you desired interviewed in this matter, was located at the Ponderosa Camp Ground, Myrtle Beach, South Carolina, on June 16, 1971. During June, 1968, he was assigned to work with the task force which prepared the classified material involved in this case, which material is usually referred to as the "McNamara Study." Among his responsibilities was the supervision of the printing and distribution of the completed study.

General Hixon, when interviewed, stated that it was he who ordered that 25 copies of the completed study be printed, and only he, a Colonel Robert Pursley and an unknown lieutenant commander were aware of the exact number of copies printed.

Based on his recollection, he stated that nine sets of the study were distributed. Two of these, he said, went to the National Archives and the others were distributed among various Defense Department officials, whose names are already known, a staff member of the White House, and the Rand Corporation of Santa Monica, California. These nine, he said, were issued under the control of the Classified Control Section within the Office of the Secretary of Defense. The remaining 16 sets were placed in the personal vault of the Secretary of Defense and were not registered with the Classified Control Section. General Hixon advised that to record the distribution made, he had prepared a single copy of a memorandum entitled "Vietnam Study Group" and placed it in a safe which is presently in the office of Admiral Dan Murphy who succeeded him in his Department of Defense assignment. We will endeavor to secure a copy of this memorandum and furnish it to the Internal Security Division of the Department.

Late last night Mr. Robert C. Mardian, Assistant Attorney General, Internal Security Division, called me. He said the Attorney General wanted the FBI to immediately this morning interview two people to determine what they know about how the New York Times secured the material relative to the above captioned subject matter. By way of background on Sunday, June 13, 1971, the New York Times began printing a series of articles purporting to present a history of decision-making process by the United States on Vietnam policy for the period 1945-1967. The document from which this material was secured is classified "~~Top Secret~~" and is regarded as being extremely sensitive.

The two people that the Attorney General wants to have the FBI interview immediately this morning are Mr. Leslie Gelb and General Robert Hixon. Mr. Leslie Gelb at the time the document was prepared was Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense and later went over to the Department of State. General Robert Hixon at the time the document was prepared was Military Executive Officer to the Secretary of Defense. He is currently assigned in Vietnam but today he is on annual leave in Washington, D. C. General Hixon was involved in the distribution of the material at the time and the interview with him should cover this aspect as well as other relevant aspects. Mr. Leslie Gelb directed the study at the time and on interviewing him it should be Memoranda Mr. Sullivan to Mr. Tolson, 6/15/71, advised that Attorney General (AG) requested we interview four individuals in connection with captioned matter and proceed with all necessary investigation. Three of four interviews completed and two individuals named [redacted] as suspect.

[redacted] Attached is proposed letter to AG confirming his requests and summarizing interview results.

Results of Interviews Requested by AG

[redacted] Indianapolis Star newspaper who reportedly had received from New York Times some of the classified material involved, on 6/15/71, stated he has no such material. Only information received by his paper consists of teletype releases issued to regular subscribers by New York Times News Service. [redacted] was candid, cooperative and volunteered to contact FBI should he receive any material of value in future.

[redacted] prepared documents involved in captioned matter while [redacted] On 6/15/71 he furnished detailed background regarding individuals connected with this task force and concerned with preparation of its study. He acknowledged lax security surrounding staff members would have made it possible for the study to have been reproduced before its final completion and official distribution; however, he did not think this was the case. identified [] as the most likely person through whom New York Times may have come into possession of material involved in this matter on the grounds [] had become very radical regarding the Vietnam situation, had advocated importance of making the study public and had presented a paper at American Political Science Convention in September of 1970 wherein he used classified information in paraphrased form taken from task force documents. [] expressed distress over unauthorized disclosure in instant matter and offered every assistance possible.

b7C

[] on 6/15/71 advised that a [] told him in early May, 1971, that an unnamed individual connected with Grove Press, New York City, said that [] had contacted Grove Press, the New York Times and other newspapers trying to negotiate publication of a 4,000 or 5,000 page document on United States involvement in Vietnam. When captioned articles appeared in New York Times [] recalled this conversation and reported it to State Department official. He reluctantly disclosed [] identity as source of the information and requested that the fact that he had done this not be disclosed.

b7D

General Robert Hixon, whom we were requested by AG to interview since he handled official distribution of the material involved in this matter, was en route all day 6/15/71 from McLean, Virginia, to the area of Myrtle Beach, South Carolina, and could not be interviewed. Our Columbia, South Carolina, office is under instructions to locate him in the Myrtle Beach area as soon as possible, conduct the interview and submit results by teletype. Upon receipt of results, they will be furnished the AG.

Bureau File Check on [REDACTED]

Our files reveal in 1/70 we received information from [REDACTED] had been told in confidence by [REDACTED] had recently [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Allegation was not substantiated by investigation but information was obtained indicating [REDACTED] was very emotional about Vietnam war and the President of Rand, as well as the Director of Security of Rand, opined that documents of most interest to [REDACTED] would have been the McNamara Study. Results of our investigation were referred to Department advising we were taking no further action in the absence of a specific request from the Department.

b7C
b7D

Analysis of Necessary Investigative Steps

Unauthorized possession by New York Times of "Top Secret" information involved in this matter, commonly referred to as the "McNamara Study," is possible violation of espionage statutes on part of officials or employees of the paper.

Unauthorized release of the classified material to the newspaper by an individual having authorized possession is possible violation by that individual of same statutes.

We do not feel that we should at this time interview any New York Times personnel.

We should endeavor to establish the source through which the New York Times received the classified material and gear our investigation to Departmental requirements for its presentation before Grand Jury which will be called in New York [REDACTED] To do this, we should account for and locate the 15 copies of the "McNamara Study" originally printed for distribution and interview individuals who have had access to them and who may be possible suspects; However, the foregoing information indicates strongly [] is possible source of the New York Times material. Considering the time factors, we feel we should go to the heart of the matter by concentrating on him immediately.

b7C

Recommended Investigative Steps

1. Interview [] concealing the fact his identity was furnished by [] and secure all information he has regarding [] connection with the matter.

b6
b7C
b7D

2. Interview anyone named by [] as having possible knowledge regarding [] connections with the leak to the New York Times.

3. Since past investigation of [] established he had access to a copy of the "McNamara Study" at the Rand Corporation, Santa Monica, California, contact officials of that company to establish if its copy of the report is still with the firm and, if so, determine, if possible, whether the report has been duplicated.

4. Pursue any logical leads that arise as the result of steps 1, 2 and 3, and thereafter, interview []

If foregoing investigative steps do not resolve this matter we will immediately recommend investigative procedures normally followed in leak cases to account for location of all other copies of the "McNamara Study" and interview persons who logically might be suspects in this case.

ACTION:

1. If approved, attached letter will be sent AG confirming his request for investigation, summarizing interview results to date and advising we are handling this investigation on an expeditious basis.

2. If approved, we will proceed with the investigation as set forth above.

3. If approved, representatives of Assistant Director Dalbey and the Domestic Intelligence Division will confer with Departmental attorneys to assure our investigation is geared to objectives of the Grand Jury presentation.

SUMMARY

INFORMATIVE NOTE

Date 6-16-71

Attorney General (AG) had reported earlier allegation that [redacted] [redacted] "Indianapolis Star" had some of the documents taken in this matter and used as source material for New York Times articles. AG requested he be interviewed.

b7C

Attached reports results of interview of [redacted] who was candid and cooperative. Only material he has in case is data sent to his paper routinely by New York Times as a customer of its News Service.

Data in attached is being furnished AG by letter with a copy thereof being sent to the Deputy AG and to the Assistant Attorney General-Internal Security Division (Mardian).

On the night of June 16, 1971, Barry Gray, former "New York Post" correspondent who now has a two-hour nighttime radio talk show in New York City, interviewed Sidney Zion, who recently was connected with the "Scanlan's Monthly" magazine. Zion identified Daniel Ellsberg, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Massachusetts, as the person who gave the classified information involved in this matter to "The New York Times."

On June 17, 1971, [redacted] was contacted at his residence, [redacted] by prearrangement. In the presence of members of the news media, [redacted] volunteered that he had no statement to make other than what he had previously revealed through the radio media and had no intention of identifying his source. INFORMATIVE NOTE

Attached reveals that a Xerox operator in Boston has volunteered information showing that on 3/22/71, he performed a large Xerox work order during night hours for two employees of the New York Times. Approximately 3,900 prints were made with job ending in early morning hours.

When operator noted documents may possibly have been classified, he called this to attention of original New York Times contact, who then contacted a second newspaper employee who appeared at the business establishment. This latter individual bore press credentials accrediting him to White House as a New York Times correspondent. The Xerox operator recalls documents dealt with Vietnamese problem and were dated in the 1940's, '50's and '60's.

We have been subsequently advised by Boston that the male White House correspondent has been identified as [redacted] whose byline appears with the current New York Times series in this leak matter.

Memorandum Mr. Wannall to Mr. Brennan, 6/16/71, outlined investigative steps to be taken in this matter, as well as the fact that [redacted] had been identified as a primary suspect. Last night on radio talk show in New York City, Ellsberg was identified as person who gave classified material to the "New York Times" by Sidney Zion, who is connected with the "Scanlan" magazine. Arrangements have been made to interview [redacted] and Boston Office has been instructed to immediately interview [redacted]

b7C

Supervisor Harry Hoeg, New York Office, at 8 a. m. advised that Barry Gray, former "New York Post" correspondent who now has two-hour nighttime talk show in New York City, last night interviewed on his show Sidney Zion, who is connected with the rather disreputable "Scanlan" magazine. Zion stated that Daniel Ellsberg, a senior research associate, Center of International Study, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Massachusetts, was the person who gave the classified information involved in this matter to the "New York Times." New York Office has contacted [redacted] and he will be interviewed this morning.

b7C

Information was also received last night from the Department of State that former Secretary of State Dean Rusk had been told by a friend, not identified, but a member of the press, that the person who gave the classified material to the "New York Times" is a civilian who once worked in the Defense Department and is now living in Boston.

In view of the information furnished by our New York Office, as well as the foregoing which undoubtedly relates to [redacted] the Boston Office has been instructed to immediately interview [redacted]

INFORMATIVE NOTE

Date 6/17/71

McLek is the code name assigned to our investigation of the leak of the McNamara Study to the "New York Times." We had been previously requested by Departmental Attorneys in New York to ascertain whereabouts of a set of workpapers for this Study maintained by a Rand employee in Washington.

Attached shows results of inquiries in Washington pursuant to the Department's request and shows that all of the papers have been recalled from Rand at Washington by Department of Defense (DOD) but from information available it is not known if recalled items included uninventoried workpapers which were the object of the original query. DOD official who has custody of the recalled items is in New York and the Departmental officials there are being referred to him for clarification.

Pertinent portions in attached will be furnished by letter to the Attorney General and his Deputy with a copy being furnished to Assistant Attorney General, Internal Security Division. Full details will be furnished to Internal Security Division.

McLek is the code name assigned to our investigation of the leak of the McNamara Study to the "New York Times." Accountability for the 15 original sets of this Study rests with Department of Defense (DOD) and responsibility for declassification and evaluation of damage assessment by disclosure of report rests with that Department.

Attached reveals details of contacts by WFO Agents with DOD officials with latter agreeing to assume responsibility for determining if Study can be declassified, damage assessment and survey comparing pages published in "Times" article with finished Study.

All 15 copies have been accounted for and have been found intact. DOD noted some information in "New York Times" articles did not appear in McNamara Study thereby bearing out possibility "New York Times" articles derived from workpapers not subject to existing inventory maintained by DOD. General Robert Pursley who has knowledge of reproduction and distribution of the Study will be interviewed at the Pentagon by WFO.

Pertinent portions of attached will be furnished by letter to the Attorney General with copies to his Deputy and to the Assistant Attorney General, Internal Security Division. Details will be furnished to the Internal Security Division.

Attached reports information received by [redacted] from [redacted] incorporating [redacted] the latter's suggestions as to persons he feels are suspect as responsible for the leak of the "McNamara Study" to the New York Times. His observations are personal opinion based on his contact with and knowledge of various individuals assigned to the task force preparing the study.

[redacted] suggests [redacted] [redacted] as an excellent suspect, describing him as having ability to perform the act, disenchanted with the Vietnamese war, and emotionally disturbed. Other suspects include a former Air Force-major who worked on the study and a third, a former foreign service officer who now heads the Peace Corps in Morocco.

[redacted] continues as our prime suspect in this matter. We will search Bureau indices regarding the other suspects mentioned and will consider instituting field inquiry regarding them.

Pertinent portions of attached will be included in a letter to the Attorney General, with copies thereof for his Deputy, and for the Assistant Attorney General, Internal Security Division.

ReBStel to Bureau, Los Angeles, New York and WFO dated 6/18/71, and Boston airtel dated 6/17/71.

Enclosed for WFO are copies of the four blurred Xerox pages of printed material obtained from Victor Publishers, Bedford, Massachusetts, referred to in retel.

WFO should furnish these pages to appropriate officials of Department of Defense for comparison with "McNamara Study" and work papers and drafts pertaining to the "McNamara Study" currently in possession of Defense.

Arrangements should be made to be advised of the results of this comparison should an identification of the material be effected.

While referenced Boston airtel indicates four blurred pages obtained from Victor Publishing Company were enclosed for Bureau, examination of these enclosures indicates they are Xerox copies of the Xerox pages. Boston is requested to clarify this to the Bureau, as well as the initials "JCO" and the date "3/25/71" which appear on these copies.

NOTE:

Investigation of leak of classified information to "The New York Times" revealed that the Victor Publishing Company, Bedford, Massachusetts, performed Xeroxing during 3/71 for a man and woman believed to be employees of "The New York Times." During the process of duplicating the material, four Xerox copies became stuck in the machine and were later retrieved by the owner of the publishing company. These four blurred Xerox pages were furnished to the Boston Office.

He protests policy he was part of

By Thomas Oliphant
Globe Staff

Daniel Ellsberg came to the Federal Building yesterday hoping to be arrested, and when people told Dan Ellsberg stop sitting down in the street it's got to make you stop and think.

For of all the thousands of people in the Government Center area no one was better acquainted with the history of the Indochina war than Ellsberg, because in a way he helped make it, something he regrets very much now.

After a stint as a lieutenant in the Marine Corps in the mid-1950s, Ellsberg joined in 1959, the Rand Corp., a non-profit research organization based in California which relied on heavily for secret work by the defense and foreign policy agencies of the US government.

In 1964, at the time of the alleged Gulf of Tonkin incident, Ellsberg joined the Pentagon, where he spent a year working exclusively as special aide to the assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs.

From late 1965 through June of 1967, he was in South Vietnam with the State Department, spending his last six months there as special assistant to the deputy ambassador.

Back in this country, Ellsberg rejoined Rand, continuing his concentration on Vietnam. He was, for example, one of a tiny group of men who read from cover to cover a secret, 10,000-page report on the last 26 years of the war's history that had been ordered by former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

After Richard Nixon's election in 1969, Ellsberg was one of another small group that put together a set of options on Indochina for the new Administration at the request of Henry Kissinger, the President's national security affairs advisor.

Ellsberg cut all ties to his past a bit more than a year ago and came to Cambridge as a senior research associate at MIT's Center for International Studies.

Ellsberg wasn't arrested yesterday, as he wasn't arrested earlier this week in Washington. However, as police tried to move the group he was sitting with back from in front of the Kennedy Building, I did watch the ex-Marine quietly accept billy club blows to his head, his watch, and his crotch.

Later, Ellsberg talked about his day in the street:

"I obviously think the government should stop what it's doing," he said. But until it does, we must be willing to put our bodies on the line if only symbolically, to try and make it stop. I'm sorry this is necessary, but it is.

"You know, I'm so glad I've found the personal freedom that obliges me to do this now. Both here and in Washington, I was very proud of the people I've come to meet, and very respectful of their non-violence.

"But these Boston police, they were unnecessarily brutal. There was no reason to use clubs on people who were willing to submit non-violently to arrest. The government, though, clearly didn't want to have to report large numbers of people arrested, and so they charged.

"What they were doing was fighting against a symbolic act, which, if allowed to continue, would help end the war. And, you know, that's exactly what Richard Nixon does every day in the White House.

And so, the demonstration ended for Dan Ellsberg, and those days in the Pentagon must have seemed light-years away.

Story Behind N.Y. Times' 'Project X'

By HERALD TRAVELER
STAFF REPORTER

(Copyright 1971 by Boston Herald Traveler)

"Project X," The New York Times' code name for one of the century's greatest journalistic coups, was completed under conditions of secrecy so stringent that many senior editors in New York and Washington had no idea of the massive Vietnam report until they read the first installment in their newspaper Sunday morning.

When reporter Neil Sheehan was pulled out of the Washington Bureau three months ago, staffers there were given no information on why he was taken, or for how long.

Shortly after that day, however, Sheehan, a handful of other reporters, and several editors and copy editors locked themselves into a suite of rooms in a posh New York hotel to comb through about 45 volumes consisting of 250,000 words, chronicling the decision-making of the conduct of the war in Vietnam from 1963 to December, 1968.

The suite was absolutely off limits to all but reporters Hedrick Smith, E. W. Kenkorthy, Fox Butterfield and Sheehan, in addition to select officers of the newspaper and top editors including vice President James Reston and Managing Editor A. M. Rosenthal. Also working in the suite was a top-flight editing staff from the foreign news desk believed to consist of Gerald Gold, Allan M. Siegal and Samuel Abt.

To the rest of the Times men nothing was divulged except that there was a major project in the offing, code-named Project X. Even that was known to only a few senior men in the huge, 14-story, block-sized building in which thousands of employees put out the nation's most prestigious newspaper.

OVERALL DIRECTION of the huge job of distilling and presenting the Pentagon's exhaustive history of the war centered in the hotel suite and in the wood-paneled offices in the Times Building's 14th floor.

There Publisher Arthur "Punch" Sulzberger, Reston and, apparently Rosenthal deliberated over the format, content and shape of what has turned out to be the best-documented story of all time, a story that has rocked Washington.

Daily memos went back and forth between the executive suite and the hotel—and the Times legal staff was consulted exhaustively on legal and constitutional issues raised by Project X.

At the hotel, special identification was demanded of anyone seeking entry into the suite where the editorial staff was working. The identification cards were updated and changed regularly, reflecting removal from access of several staffers.

AND, DESPITE the coming and going of thousands of hotel guests, the knowledge, of the project, at least in rumor form by at least two dozen men, and despite the extraordinary nature of the project, word never got out.

The Times had been smart—ever since the day when Kennedy administration officials, aware that the Times knew of the impending Bay of Pigs invasion in Cuba, pressured the paper in to downplaying the story and omitting crucial, details.

Last Saturday afternoon, editors responsible for the daily production of other news sections of the newspaper first got wind of the project when they were told that their space allocation would be less than usual for an 84-page Sunday news section. They were not told that the saved space would be devoted to a 30,000-word first installment of the report.

In Washington, secrecy was, if anything, more thorough. When Sheehan was pulled by the management in New York, the staff was given no reason for his absence. The situation was ironically like that in World War II when the U.S. War Department took reporter William L. Laurence out of the news room and made him privy—in complete secrecy—to the development, testing and military use of the first American atomic bombs.

SEVERAL TIMES editors in the Washington Bureau asked New York for an explanation of why Sheehan, a Washington workhorse, had been taken to New York. They were told nothing except that Sheehan would be gone for an indefinite period.

Only reporter-editor Max Frankel and editor Robert Phelps knew the details of Project X, although columnist-editor Tom Wicker apparently had at least some knowledge.

The first real clue the Washington people had to the nature and significance of Project X was when a highly-placed "member of the Kennedy team" told some staffers a few weeks ago that the Times was ready to unload a story of unprecedented proportions.

In what connection the man was associated with the Kennedys — whether with President Kennedy, or his brothers, the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy or Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts — was not known last night.

LAST FRIDAY an order came from top management in New York: All Washington bureau staffers were under an "absolute injunction" to tell no one from outside anything about the project.

And in New York the next afternoon, Rosenthal walked over to the production editors in the center of the hanger-like third floor newsroom.

He told the editors that a six-page story would be appearing in the next morning's Sunday New York Times, and there would be a barrage of questions, many angry, coming from Washington, other newspapers and television networks.

"When the phones start ringing," Rosenthal said, "Your orders are to tell them, 'No comment.'"

Only 3 Have Read Secret Indochina Report;

All Urge Swift Pullout

By Thomas Oliphant
Globe Staff

In the fall of 1967, Robert S. McNamara, then secretary of defense, ordered a secret review of the entire history of the war by the French and the Americans against national communism in Indochina since the end of World War II.

The project took about a year, by which time McNamara was out and Clark Clifford had replaced him.

The review resulted in a 10,000 page report. Several individuals in the government at the time read parts of it, but as far as can be determined, only three men read every word of it.

Significantly, every one of them today is of the opinion that the United States should withdraw from Indochina unilaterally and swiftly.

Moreover, every one of them, before deciding to leave government service and commit themselves to the antiwar movement with varying degrees of intensity, held sensitive jobs during the formative months of the Nixon Administration.

By far the most vocal in his opposition to the war is Daniel Ellsberg, who for nearly a year has been a senior research associate at MIT's Center for International Studies.

Before that, however, Ellsberg spent six years at high levels of the Vietnam decision-making process. Looking back on his involvement, he said quietly during an interview: "I was participating in a criminal conspiracy to wage aggressive war."

The second man who pored over those 10,000 pages of Indochina history in 1968 is Morton H. Halperin, who at the time was deputy assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs. In 1969, when President Nixon took office, Halperin moved to the White House, where he was assistant to Henry Kissinger, Mr. Nixon's extremely powerful national security affairs advisor, before resigning in September of 1969.

For more than a year, Halperin worked quietly on his own, mostly on a book.

Last month, though, he signed on to run the "peace office" at Common Cause, the citizens' lobby established by John Gardner, which two weeks ago announced its intention to join the fight for a unilateral withdrawal from Indochina.

In a brief chat in Washington last week Halperin said simply: "I think the President is not getting it out. I think the present policy carries grave risks of further escalation, and I think it's splitting the country apart."

"Read that recent State of the World message. It's all there. I believe the President. He means what he says, namely that we're not getting out,"

The third man is Les Gelb, who was Halperin's deputy at the Defense Department, and later succeeded him for a while, before quitting in June of 1969. Last spring after the invasion of Cambodia, he took the plunge by authoring with Halperin a widely quoted article for the Washington Post, entitled "Only a Timetable Can Extricate Nixon."

These three men are by no means alone. Since the Nixon Administration took office, there have in fact been numerous resignations, especially from the rank of the comparatively young, highly skilled foreign policy experts whom Kissinger recruited for the White House.

This week, though, center stage is occupied by Daniel Ellsberg, a quiet, but intense man who, had it not been for the war, might have eventually become one of the key members of the country's foreign policy establishment.

Ellsberg gets center stage by virtue of his article in the current New York Review of Books, entitled "Murder in Laos — The Reason Why," based on what he knows about activities at high levels in the White House, State and Defense departments.

Here are sample paragraphs:

On Vietnamization — "US military advisors hold out no hope whatever that Saigon could be held with any assurance for three years, or even one year, if no US military personnel remained in South Vietnam.

"...In fact, through 1969, and, as far as is known, today, the highest military leaders have never judged officially that the job of holding Saigon could be done, with reasonable assurance and with adequate safety for remaining US troops, with fewer than 200,000 military personnel in the country.

"...The semi-permanent minimum (number of US troops) may well turn out to be not much lower than 100,000 for the end of 1972 and after. It is more likely to prove higher; and it will almost certainly not be less than half that figure long after 1972."

On Nixon's basic policy — "Johnson had lost in Nixon's view, because he had combined inadequate air attacks with excessive numbers of ground troops, US casualties and draft calls. Once these numbers were diminished, Nixon believed, the American public and its representatives in Congress would accept even a semi-permanent and geographically extended war, financed by America but with direct American combat action limited primarily to airpower."

On civilian and non-combatant casualties in Laos — "What is Richard Nixon's best estimate of the number of Laotian people — 'enemy' and 'non-enemy' — that US firepower will kill in the next 12 months?

"He does not have an estimate. He has not asked Henry Kissinger for one, and Kissinger has not asked the Pentagon. . . and none of them differs in this from his predecessors."

In the mid-1950s, Ellsberg was a captain in the Marines. In 1959, he joined the Rand Corp., a non-profit research organization based in California, that is relied on heavily by defense and foreign policy agencies of the government.

In August of 1964, in fact on the night of the alleged Tonkin Gulf incident, he joined the Pentagon as special assistant to the assistant secretary for international security affairs, and spent the next year working exclusively on Vietnam.

From 1965 to 1967, he was in Vietnam for the State Department, the last six months as a special assistant to the deputy ambassador there. There, it was back to Rand, where he continued to work on Vietnam.

After the election in 1968, Ellsberg, along with such men as Halperin and Gelb, were involved in a Kissinger-initiated project to develop a complete set of options for the incoming Nixon administration on the subject of the war.

Significantly, Ellsberg said in an interview, the one option that was left out of the paper presented at the first meeting of the National Security Council after Mr. Nixon's inauguration was the one dealing with "unilateral extrication by a fixed date."

In early 1969, Ellsberg was also a Rand consultant in the preparation of a list of 29 questions about the war which Kissinger sent to every department and agency involved. The result was 3000 pages of answers, and Ellsberg says he read all of them.

Later that year, after returning to California, Ellsberg and five colleagues took the unusual step of writing a letter urging swift, unilateral withdrawal, that was printed in the New York Times and Washington Post just before the first Moratorium demonstration in October.

The following spring, he decided to cut all his ties to the past, and came to Cambridge.

Ellsberg said his involvement in the secret review of the war ordered by McNamara had "an enormous effect" on his views.

"When I started," he said the other day, "I viewed the war as a well-intentioned effort, reasonable, though in retrospect, mistaken.

"But it soon became completely clear that American actions were really a series of desperate gambles actually perceived as such by those who made them at the time."

Asked about the early work of the Nixon administration, he said: "At first, the policy seemed to be to try and arrange a mutual withdrawal, with the help of the Soviet Union."

When that effort failed, he said, the policy changed, and this is when the first resignations from the White House and other agencies began.

"The next option," Ellsberg added, "that was embraced then, and apparently still is, was, to use the jargon, a reduced-cost, indefinitely sustainable presence

INFORMATIVE NOTE

Date 6/17/71

Attached relates to the obtaining of copies of newspaper articles and the identification of their authors by our Boston Office, which articles have a bearing on recent unauthorized disclosure of classified information to "The New York Times".

One article deals with an interview in early 1971 of Daniel Ellsberg, primary suspect in this matter, during which he urged U. S. withdrawal from Vietnam.

The other article allegedly deals with how "New York Times" obtained the classified data.

Boston Office is obtaining copies of articles and identifying authors, and information will be furnished to Paul Vincent, Departmental Attorney who is handling Grand Jury proceedings in New York City.

Reference is made to the request of Assistant Attorney General Mardian dated June 19, 1971, for this Bureau to interview Representative Paul N. McCloskey, Jr., of California, for details regarding a statement attributed to him in news reports that he had obtained certain documents which are the subject of the above investigation from [redacted] a suspect in this matter.

Representative McCloskey declined to be interviewed on June 21, 1971, but consented to an appointment for interview by Special Agents of this Bureau at two p. m., on June 22, 1971.

b7C

Attached is a memorandum of this Bureau dated June 22, 1971, which incorporates the results of the interview of Representative McCloskey

It should be noted that when this Bureau's Agents were ushered into the Congressman's inner office, they were confronted by a sizeable group of waiting newsmen and photographers, and respectfully declined to carry out the interview under such conditions. They requested a private interview and Representative McCloskey agreed, at which time he dismissed the representatives of the press.

McCloskey did not offer to turn over the material he received from [redacted] to our Agents and volunteered that it is inconceivable to him that [redacted] is guilty of something for telling the truth. He stated that [redacted] is in complete possession of his faculties, that he knows what he is doing and any suggestion that [redacted] is deranged or demented is incorrect.

The Editor of the Indianapolis Star

Bob Collins' observation of the New York Times brazen act of publishing a SECRET REPORT and the Editors of the Indianapolis Star complete silence editorially, to me, is an indication of just one segment of over 1 million Americans who have become absolutely TOLERANT OF EVERYTHING:

The point that must be made is: THE REPORT WAS MARKED SECRET. FIFTEEN COPIES WERE PRINTED AND PLACED IN THE HANDS OF RESPONSIBLE PEOPLE. The violation that was made must be recognized:

When American citizens of all walks of life speak out in behalf of the New York Times' brazen misuse of FREEDOM OF THE PRESS, they are condoning subversion: Subversion is running rampant in this nation and it is time is is recognized as that: THE REPORT WAS SECRET AND CLEARLY MARKED AS SUCH. IT WAS TO REMAIN SECRET.

All people who feel this subversive act by the New York Times and Mr. Ellsberg is correct are guilty of tolerating and condoning STEALING, DISHONESTY AND ABUSE OF AMERICAN FREEDOM:

To summarize for information pertinent developments in our continuing investigation of the leak of classified information to "The New York Times." Information herein was received during the night from the various field offices involved.

Investigation at Albany and Boston has uncovered

[redacted] who have made positive identification of [redacted] as being involved in the reproduction of documents at Victor Publishers on March 21-23, 1971. [redacted] has additionally identified [redacted] as also participating in the mentioned duplication. It will be recalled that [redacted] has been credited by byline with preparation of "The New York Times" series involved. [redacted]

Efforts at New York City to pin down residence in that city of [redacted] reported as the third person from that publication involved in mentioned duplication, have been negative but are continuing.

Representative Paul McCloskey (California) claimed he could not be interviewed on 6/21/71 but agreed to an appointment for interview by Bureau Agents at 2 p.m. this date. News media this date contains statements by McCloskey that he will release to a full Congressional Committee a summary of the documents he alleges he received from [redacted] our principal suspect in this matter. 65-74060-57

During interview on New York City (NYC) radio station WMCA, 6/16/71, Sidney Zion identified former Department of Defense economist Daniel Ellsberg as source of instant leak. Zion is former Assistant United States Attorney (AUSA) in New Jersey (1961-63) who took several slaps at Director during discussion of book critical of FBI on NYC radio station WRFM on 9/16/64.

Our investigation of [redacted] in 1961 when he was [redacted] developed no derogatory information. He is [redacted]

b7C

In an article in "The New York Times," 5/16/65, Zion attacked use of confessions in criminal cases. In radio panel discussion of book "The FBI Nobody Knows," by Fred J. Cook, Zion noted that when the Director is attacked, everyone immediately leaps to his defense. He took issue with Cook's statement that no Attorney General (AG) could "contain Hoover" by stating that an AG with "guts" could do this. A third panelist was William M. Kunstler, controversial defense attorney.

SUMMARY

INFORMED BY

Attached furnishes detailed listing given our New York Office by Departmental attorney at New York of documents maintained by New York Times utilized as basis for its series on the "McNamara Study" expose. This is the list as furnished to Federal court in New York by the New York Times and includes only the title of the separate documents held by the newspaper.

In furnishing the list to the New York Office, the Departmental official noted that six groups of documents listed by the Times do not appear to be related to the McNarama Study and are from other sources.

Documents held by the Rand Company in California to which [redacted] our prime suspect in this matter, had access have been recalled by Department of Defense and are currently held by that Department. We will instruct WFO to furnish listing set forth herein to Department of Defense for comparison and analysis against the documents received from the Rand Company in attempt to ascertain similarities which could strengthen our case against [redacted] revaluation of classified data to the New York Times.

b7C

Since the list was received from Departmental attorneys and is held in its original form by the Department of Justice, no additional dissemination of information herein will be made.

DATE SUMMARY 2/10/81 BY SP2 TRP/hk Date 6/19/71
 INFORMATIONAL

Attached summarizes developments at Washington, D. C., in a continuing investigation of leak of classified data to the New York Times.

Note the fact that documents in this matter held by the Rand Corporation at California and Washington, D. C., are now held by the Department of Defense and will be produced by that Department if necessary in connection with judicial proceedings. Photographs of individuals believed to have been involved in sizeable Xeroxing of classified information in Boston 3/21-23/71 have been obtained and dispatched to Boston for identification purposes. General Robert Pursley, previously noted as involved in preparation of "McNamara Study" at the Pentagon, is currently unavailable for interview; however, it is felt information he could supply would add little to our knowledge of the preparation and distribution of the report. No extensive investigation will be made, therefore, to find him for interview.

Pertinent data herein will be included in letter to the Attorney General, copies of which will be furnished to his Deputy, and to Assistant Attorney General, Internal Security Division.

SP-100/100

In our investigation of the leak of classified information we had previously learned that two printing companys in Boston had performed sizeable Xeroxing jobs in late March, 1971, for a man and woman believed to be New York Times employees. A tentative identification of the man involved reveals he may have been [redacted] whose name appears in the byline of the New York Times series involved in this matter. The woman identified herself as one [redacted]

Attached shows that a local cab driver has confirmed transporting a white male and female from a copying firm to the hotel where [redacted] was staying and from there transporting the male to an apartment in Cambridge, Massachusetts. Investigation is continuing at Boston to pin down this facet of the investigation. Also mentioned is the fact that continued efforts to contact residence of [redacted] our prime suspect in this matter, have been unproductive to date.

HE DID NOT SEE ANY MARKINGS INDICATING THE MATERIAL WAS CLASSIFIED ~~SECRET~~ OR ~~TOP SECRET~~ BUT DID NOTICE SOME TYPE OF CLASSIFICATION OR ~~CONFIDENTIAL~~ INDICATIONS ON THE MATERIAL AND HAD EXPRESSED HIS CONCERN TO [REDACTED] AS A RESULT SHE MADE A TELEPHONE CALL AND AT ABOUT NINE PM A MALE INDIVIDUAL ARRIVED IN A TAXI CAB. THIS MALE IDENTIFIED HIMSELF AS A REPRESENTATIVE OF THE NEW YORK TIMES AND SHOWED AN IDENTIFICATION ACCREDITING HIM TO THE WHITE HOUSE AS A NEW YORK TIMES CORRESPONDENT. [REDACTED] WAS UNABLE TO RECALL THE NAME OF THIS INDIVIDUAL BUT STATED THE IDENTIFICATION WAS AN OFFICIAL WHITE HOUSE PRESS CORPS DOCUMENT WITH THE MAN'S PHOTOGRAPH ATTACHED. THIS INDIVIDUAL ASSURED [REDACTED] THAT THE DOCUMENTS WERE OUT DATED AND OLD AND THERE WAS NO PROBLEM IN COPYING THEM. HE ALSO INDICATED THAT THE NEW YORK TIMES WAS GOING TO DO A REPORT ON VIETNAM.

ON APRIL NINE, SEVENTYONE, INQUIRY AT MINUTEMAN CAB COMPANY IN LEXINGTON REVEALED THAT APPROXIMATELY FIVE AM ON THE MORNING OF MARCH TWENTYTWO, SEVENTYONE, A COUPLE WERE PICKED UP AT THE VICTOR PUBLISHERS COMPANY AND TAKEN TO THE COMMANDER HOTEL IN CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS. THE DRIVER OF THIS CAB STATED THAT DURING THE TRIP THE COUPLE COMMENTED UPON THIER STATE OF TIREDNESS AS THEY HAD SPENT A CONSIDERABLE AMOUNT OF TIME REPRINTING SOME PAPERS.

A KNOWLEDGEABLE SOURCE WHO HAD PROVIDED RELIABLE INFORMATION IN THE PAST, ON JUNE EIGHTEEN, SEVENTYONE, ADVISED THAT [] FOR THE NEW YORK TIMES, HAS BEEN RESIDING IN [] SINCE AUGUST, SEVENTY.

On one occasion upon completion of copying job, one [redacted] who at that time was employed by [redacted] drove the [redacted] to Cambridge, Massachusetts, from the publishing company and allegedly received $10 from them for the service.

[redacted] has been described as a "hippie-type and antiestablishment" and resides in a commune-type apartment in Cambridge. The door on this apartment has a poster indicating support for the "Phoenix," which is a local weekly newspaper that carries articles appealing to the anti-establishment community and, further, has been unfavorable to the FBI in the past.

Boston has indicated it did not intend to interview [redacted] unless advised to do so by the Bureau.
